

Together, we are committed to building Community to make a global impact.

Our In the City for A Global Community capital campaign will make it possible for us to have our very own headquarters – for the first-time in the ICC's history. We envision this new headquarters as a place where together, we will expand singers' access to diverse and enriching learning opportunities, empower each singer to embrace their artistic excellence as they journey through the continuum of music education programs offered by the ICC. These skills will be necessary to address the complexities of a globally connected world.

The ICC has been uniting voices from our community for nearly 40 years; from downtown Indianapolis to all corners of central Indiana we are more than a choir – we are a community. The new ICC headquarters will be a safe and welcoming place that our singers can think of as their musical home where they know they belong and can flourish. In this comfortable space, singers will be able to express themselves boldly and strive for artistic excellence while sharing their individuality with each other and creating exception choral artistry.

Our new building will have the flexibility and versatility to enable us to increase our capacity to offer guidance, resources, and support to music educators locally, nationally, and internationally. This will reinforce our presence as leaders in the global choral community by enabling us to offer more on-site professional development experiences to music educators while utilizing technology to extend the ICC community around the world.

Building Community

Gifts to this campaign will propel the ICC forward into the future as a premiere cultural institution that empowers children to create artistic excellence and that partners and collaborates with other arts organizations to ensure a vibrant arts community for a global city.

A new headquarters will enable the ICC to establish an Arts Center that will benefit our central Indiana community by:

- Responding to the growing need for high-quality music education and the public desire for quality artistry.
- Creating a world-class performing Arts Center where multiple organizations can come together to rehearse, perform, and collaborate.
- Promoting and contributing to the vibrant artistic culture of Indianapolis and central Indiana.
- Attracting families, talented workers, and creative individuals to the area, and foster a civic, cultural, and emotional connection to our community.

Thank you! Your gift will benefit children and youth in central Indiana now and for generations to come. For more information or to give, visit: icchoir.org/capitalcampaign.
