Anderson Area Children's Choir to Join with Local Band for Collaborative Concert

October 29, 2024

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ANDERSON, IN - - The Anderson Area Children's Choir (AACC) will take the stage alongside the Fall Creek Valley Community Band (FCVCB) this November for a musical collaboration for the community. The concert will feature singers in the intermediate and high school choirs from the AACC, and the volunteer amateur musicians of the FCVCB, as they fill the Anderson First United Methodist Church sanctuary with music on Saturday, November 16 starting at 7:00 pm.

"We have been coming together for this community collaboration for several years now," shares Amy Hughley, Associate Artistic Director of the Indianapolis Children's Choir, and Director of the AACC high school ensemble. "It's a great joy to bring musicians together of every age to usher in the holiday season with song. Not only is it a great experience for the young singers, but for the Madison County community as well, since we open the event to the public for free."

Both musically-minded organizations have been operating for many years in the Madison County area as outlets for musicians who want to practice and present their craft to the community. The AACC was founded in 1992 and offers programs and choirs for children ages 18 months-18 years old who wish to explore and develop choral music excellence. The choirs enroll new singers on a rolling basis. Based in Pendleton, The Fall Creek Valley Community Band has evolved over the years, but has always been comprised of volunteer amateur musicians of varying backgrounds and occupations from around central Indiana.

Each group will perform their own musical selections, and then come together as well for "Away in a Manger" and other songs. "This will definitely be a fun, musical way to kick off your holiday celebrations this festive season!" explains Hughley.
